

NYS Insurance Department, Health Bureau

The insurance Department's Health Bureau is the primary regulator of health plans, overseeing the quickly evolving health insurance market. Student interns will work with the Deputy Superintendent for Health and his staff on several major initiatives, including: developing a proposal for the governor for universal health care coverage; recommending changes to the governor on how to address the crisis in medical malpractice rates, including working with task force of doctors, hospitals, trial lawyers and insurers; drafting and negotiating health legislation and regulation; and investigating and prosecuting enforcement actions against illegal or misleading acts by health plans.
